

SATOK - System for Self-Timed Integrated Circuits Testing

Abstract

The main problems of coupling controlling and measuring apparatus with self-timed circuits are considered. The structure of hardware-software testing system SATOK is presented. This system is used for comparative testing of synchronous and self-timed implementations of the functionally identical circuits. Detailed description of user interface for such testing is presented also.